NHL Recap

Yesterday's NHL slate was massive as it marked the final day of the regular season for most of the league, causing the model to string together a mediocre day.

The model went 9-6 overall on money line predictions and 10-5 on the puck line, but it really struggled on the over/under predictions. Those predictions went just 5-6-4 on the night.

However, yesterday's 3-star play was a winner as the Hurricanes defeated the Panthers. At the end of the second period the score was 2-0 in favor of Carolina, but an eight-goal third period made things interesting down the stretch. Luckily for us the Hurricanes ended up winning by two goals.
